Chapter 1 by Alexis Illescas

It was like any other night maybe just a bit different since I didn't see the cute barista at starbucks that I get my coffee from in the morning. The thing is I was just arriving at home from a long day at work and I was just looking to relax after having been staring at a computer screen for hours... So I opened my laptop and went straight to Reddit but as usual I had some sidebars open listening to my Night Vale podcast and having Spotify open so I could listen to my favorite song ever which interestingly enough is Black Sheep by Metric although I prefer Brie Larson's version best. I also had my email open because "I mean you know force of habit, you never know something Important could come in" other than that I had utorrent open so I could download Batman: Arkham Knight "I know I know I got my refund from Rocksteady after the whole fiasco with that worthless time consuming download. So I thought what to do tonight? Binge watch some house of cards or actually go and sign up at the gym so I can grow some muscle over my pretty basic but slim figure. Well then I thought maybe I can browse Reddit and see what's new on the Askreddit side. Seemed like the perfect way to end the night. Little did I know my night was about to become so horrifying that I was willing to live in the forest just to stay away from the internet.
